

Kevin Ching
CEO, Asia
Sotheby's Hong Kong Limited

Kevin Ching joined Sotheby's in 2006 as Chief Executive Officer of Sotheby's Asia, responsible for developing the strategic expansion of the company in the region, particularly into mainland China. Previously a board executive director and group legal counsel of the public company Dickson Concepts (International) Limited, Mr Ching was in charge of its legal and general business affairs in the international world of luxury fashion, watches and jewellery. Prior to joining Dickson Concepts (International) Limited, Mr Ching was a partner in Johnson Stokes & Master, one of the largest law firms in Hong Kong, specialising in the areas of banking, international shipping, commercial law, investments in China, as well as Sino-foreign joint ventures and arbitration.

Mr Ching was educated both in Hong Kong and England, and holds a master degree in law from London University. He studied English law, Soviet law, Air and Space law as well as Customary and Modern Chinese law. Apart from Hong Kong, he is also qualified to practise law in Singapore, England and Wales, as well as Victoria, Australia.
